Bay plans FY '91 budget without increase in taxes

BY TRACI BONNEY
The City of Bay St. Louis has proposed a budget for fiscal year 1991 that will not raise taxes, according to Mayor Edward Favre.

He said the city's operating budget, if adopted as proposed, will total about $6.5 million. This is an increase of about $800,000, or 14 percent, over last year's budget.

Favre said the bulk of the increase is earmarked to finish providing utility services to the area annexed in the 1960s and to furnish those services in the proposed annexation of the Cedar Point area.

He explained that the city will be able to expand its budget without raising taxes partly because of business and residential growth in the city, which has brought in more tax revenue, and partly because the city will use some of its existing surplus reserves.

Some areas addressed in the budget include:

City protection: The police and fire departments will be increased by two more employees. The police department also will acquire new surveillance equipment; establish a specialized fingerprint system for local identification; increase training for regular and reserve officers; and expand Neighborhood Watch programs.

The fire department will continue its ongoing training and re-certification programs, especially in the area of hazardous waste removal, and make use of a training tower, which will be built.

Public works improvements: Highway 90 will be lighted from the Bay St. Louis bridge to the city limits.

The public works department will be funded to continue monitoring for natural gas line repair and replacement. A complete lift station analysis will assist the city in establishing a regular maintenance program of the system's equipment.

Major drainage and resurfacing projects are included in the budget, as is an effort to reduce infiltration into the wastewater system, which will increase the city's ability to further reduce utility rates.

Labor Day closings

In observance of Labor Day, local closings will include the county courthouse, Bay St. Louis and Waveland city halls, the post office, libraries and local banks.

Garbage pickup for the City of Bay St. Louis on Monday will be moved to Thursday. In Waveland, Monday's route will be on Tuesday and Tuesday's route to Wednesday. There will be no trash pick up in Waveland until the week of September 9.

Celebrations on Monday include day time activities at the Reef Restaurant Water Extravaganza on the Jordan River at Highway 603 and the Waveland Civic Association sponsored fireworks display at Beach Boulevard and Coleman Avenue, to begin at 8:30 p.m.

ASRM brings NASA lawsuit

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

In a class action suit against the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA), Joey Manieri is representing approximately 300 property owners claiming a breach of easement agreement will occur should the Advanced Solid Rocket Motor (ASRM) testing continue as planned.

Louisiana attorney Daniel Snellings of Gertler, Gertler & Vincent law firm explained, "According to Dwight Wylie (air division chief) at the Department of Environmental Quality, near site locations (one to two kilometers) will receive substantial toxics upon firing of the rocket motors."

He continued, since the buffer zone lands are within the one to two kilometer range, they will be affected by the firing's toxic outpour.

"It's a good lawsuit," Snellings added. "What they are doing constitutes a substantial change in the agreement."

"The 1962 agreement between NASA and the landowners states that the lands would be used as an acoustical buffer zone," to contain the sounds and vibrations caused by the testing of the Saturn V rockets.

NASA attorney Ken Human stated NASA owns the restrictive easement. "NASA purchased the land as a perpetual easement and the right to prohibit habitable structures."

"The agreement has nothing to do with activities at NASA."

Human also said the buffer zone is intended as an acoustical easement, not an environmental buffer.

In the lawsuit, Snellings includes a copy of a 1988 "ASRM site selection decision" which reads, "A very important consideration in favor of SSC (Stennis Space Center) for testing is the large buffer zone available which mitigates environmental concerns."

Human added that when NASA obtained its permits for the testing, the impact upon the buffer zone was tested the same as if people were living there.

As a member of Citizens for a Healthy Environment, Manieri is part of another lawsuit filed against NASA this June by the Sierra Club Legal Defense Fund which questions the project's wetlands permit.

Controversy over the proposed 1994 ASRM testing centers on the exhaust plume created by the 2 1/2 minute firing of the motor. The plume is to contain approximately 350 tons of toxins. Because of the intense heat, the plume is expected to rise quickly into higher atmospheric levels where it disperses and falls back to earth, causing no ill effect.

Public concern is if the plume

School board candidates must qualify by Sept. 6

BY JANET MCQUEEN

Hancock County residents wishing to fill the unexpired term of county school board District 2 representative Barbara Dedaux must qualify by Friday, Sept. 6 at 5 p.m., according to Circuit Clerk Pamela Metzler.

The special election will coincide with the November 4 election, and will appear on the appropriate ballots.

Persons wishing to vie for the seat must contact the circuit clerk's office for a petition, which must be signed by no less than 50 qualified electors of District 2.

The race has thus far drawn one candidate, Charles Ray Thomas, who was appointed to fill the slot until the special election. District 2 includes the communities of Catahoula, Flat Top, Leetown, Bayou Phillips and Pearlinton.

The school district lines were redrawn following the 1990 U.S. Census, and the new plan is pending approval, said Metzler. Candidates may qualify within the old or new districts.

Municipal school district adjusts to state funding cut

BY TRACI BONNEY

Out-of-town field trips and some administrative expenses are out of the budget for the Bay St. Louis-Waveland school district this year, according to Superintendent Robert Magee.

The municipal district, along with the rest of the state's public school districts, is suffering a funding cut at the state level. The Bay St. Louis-Waveland district is losing approximately $124,000 in funds.

This reduction brings the district general operating fund's ending balance from the 1990-1991 school year down to $94,000. The district is starting this fiscal year with that balance.

Magee said the district will not operate at a deficit this year because of that cut, but has planned reductions in central office expenses, transferred some maintenance and repair projects from the budget to short-term bank notes, refrained from hiring one special education teacher's assistant, and eliminated all student field trips outside Bay St. Louis and Waveland.

Some of the amendments and reductions, such as the project transfers to short-term notes,

Gene Rogers to serve as Pass mayor pro tem

BY T.H. TOUPS AND TRACI BONNEY

Pass Christian Alderman-at-large Gene Rogers will be mayor pro tempore of the city until Mayor Ted Lawyer returns from a stay in a New Orleans hospital.

The city's board of aldermen voted Rogers into the position during a brief meeting Friday night, Rogers said he expects Lawyer to return to work in two or three weeks.

Lawyer was taken to Baptist Hospital in New Orleans earlier in the week after being stopped by Gulfport police Thursday morning.

According to Gulfport police officials, Lawyer's car was seen weaving along Hwy. 90 about 1:30 that morning. When he was stopped, Lawyer seemed disoriented and told officers he was sick.

He was transported by Mobile Medic to Memorial Hospital at Gulfport, then taken to Baptist Hospital, from which he was discharged Friday.

His wife said he is still hospitalized in New Orleans, but did not say where, and reported that he is doing well.

Hancock UW pacesetters begin with workshop

BY ELLIS CUEVAS

The United Way of Hancock County 1991 campaign began Tuesday with a dutch treat luncheon/workshop at the Diamondhead Quality Inn.

Michael Haas Jr., 1991 campaign chairman, welcomed some 40 participants representing company's committed to being a pacesetter.

The workshop was conducted by M.J. Landry, executive director of the United Way of South Mississippi.

The pacesetters will conduct their campaigns prior to the official 1991 campaign kickoff scheduled for September 20.

The United Way of Hancock County supports some 24 agencies, which serve people from pre-birth through senior status.

In commenting about the workshop, Haas said, "The needs of our community are great, and the efforts of the pacesetter companies are a vital part of this year's campaign."

The national campaign theme for 1991 is "Something To Believe In."

"I appreciate the help of the pacesetter companies, and I feel that with their help and other volunteers, we as Hancock Countians can raise enough funds in order that the agencies may address many of these needs," Haas added.

Haas, the campaign chairman, is assisted by Sherrell Johnson, first vice-chairman,

Stennis blood drives need volunteers

Stennis Space Center will hold its quarterly blood drive Sept. 6 from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m. in the conference room of the 1100 building.

The American Red Cross is looking for volunteers, especially nurses, to help process blood donors. Volunteer nurses, RNs and LPNs, are needed to review the donor's medical history, take temperatures, pulses, blood pressures and stick fingers to check iron counts.

Volunteers do not actually draw the donor's blood. That part of the process is performed by the Red Cross staff.

Stennis hosts four drives per year, and shortages of volunteers have been a persistent problem for the Red Cross and the Space Center.

"When there is not an adequate number of volunteers at the drive to handle donors efficiently, lines get backed up, donors have to wait too long and they hesitate or even refuse to come back next time," commented Liz Gaulke, donor resources consultant with the American Red Cross Gulf Coast Region.

"With the severe shortages we've seen in the blood supply this summer, we can't afford to lose donors due to lack of volunteer help."

Volunteers are crucial to a successful blood drive, and more volunteer workers will mean more blood collected, more patients helped and more lives saved just after the long Labor Day weekend.

Besides volunteer nurses, non-medical volunteers are also used at blood drives. Volunteers are needed to register donors, label bags, serve refreshments and assist in the donor room. Nursing students, nurse assistants, EMTs, lab techs and paramedics are also qualified to take vital signs and perform iron checks for the American Red Cross.

It is requested that volunteers be available to work the blood drive from 8:30 a.m. until 3 p.m. If you would like to help at Stennis Sept. 6, or at future drives, call Georgann Kerry, chapter director of the Pearl River County Chapter of the American Red Cross, at (601) 798-5557.

should contact water, whether in the form of rain or high humidity, the exhaust cloud could possibly fall as concentrated toxins.

NASA has repeatedly assured the community that ASRM test firing will not occur during times of unsafe weather conditions.

The state department of environmental quality has NASA committed to strict monitoring and permit re-evaluation throughout the course of test stand construction and pre- and post-testing of the rockets.

Snellings said Manieri can claim representation of all buffer zone property owners in the class action because he is not asking for damages, but for a declaratory judgement.

The buffer zone contains 126,000 acres that extend into Hancock and Pearl River counties and St. Tammany Parish in Louisiana.

The purpose of the exercise was to inform elected officials, department heads, Civil Defense staff and all emergency personnel in the Hancock County Civil Defense's jurisdiction. Shelter operations, traffic control, police and fire calls, evacuation, and emergency medical services were all simulated. Boudin said the exercise was to evaluate the county's preparations in the event the area was under a hurricane alert. (Echo staff photos by Ellis Cuevas) have been approved by the school board. Other changes will be proposed to the board at its September meeting.

Magee stressed that while the out-of-town field trips are being eliminated, trips involving competition are not.

"This doesn't include such things as the state science fair, Special Olympics, band contests, or state, regional and national DECA competitions. The students will still be allowed to go to those activities."

As current plans stand, district officials expect to have an ending 1991-1992 operating fund balance of between $8,000 and $10,000.

"We're just going to live lean this year, and hope the state restores the money to us," Magee concluded.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Mrs. Guy Cole of Diamondhead received a 'big shock' Wednesday morning at about 5:30, when she reported that lightning struck her residence.

Mrs. Cole was literally thrown out of her bed by the crash and ball of lightning.

Her telephone system and television sets were destroyed; glasses were knocked out of cupboards, light fixture burned out; she had a skinned pine tree in her yard and even had shingles removed from the roof.

Mrs. Cole reports that she and her husband have never witnessed such a shaking.

And all this happened on the morning when Mrs. Cole had an appointment for some routine tests at the hospital. She said she was really nervous during the tests.

The Bay Youth Football Association is now in its fourth year and has a very organized program.

Some 80 youngsters ages seven to 12 are already signed for the 1991 season.

The league now has three teams and may have to add a fourth because a record number of youngsters are interested in the program.

The Bay squad will play teams such as Gulfview, Hancock, Pearl River Central and possibly Pass Christian this year.

Earl Payard, league commissioner, indicates the program is designed to feed players to Bay High, Stanislaus and Hancock High.

Other officers of the association are Jay Cuevas, president; Lexie Haynes, vice-president; and Cleveland Williams, treasurer.

The games are usually played on Saturdays and will start September 15 with a jamboree at Gulfview.

Practices are on Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays on the parking lot of Tiger Stadium.

Home field for the Bay squad is Tiger Stadium.

The concept of Little League Football is rather new to the area, and associations are forming all along the Coast.

I watched several practice sessions last year, and the boys appeared to be really enjoying themselves.

By the way, for girls ages seven to 12, there is also a cheerleader squad which is being formed at this time.

All members of a team are required to play at least one quarter of a game, Payard said.

This year, the league is seeking team sponsors in order to help defray some of the costs of the program.

Fayard reports interested parties may contact him at 467-7535 or Everett, at 467-7787.

Donations will also be accepted, mail to: Bay Youth Football League, P.O. Box 2315, Bay St. Louis, MS. 39521.

Dye faces different opposition this time

A great many Mississippians apparently have always thought the office of lieutenant governor was some kind of honorary job with no authority, and they voted mostly for a name they recognized without knowing much about the person.

This public perception of the office has suited Brad Dye just fine as he has won the job in 1979, 1983 and 1987. He's hoping it will work again in 1991 and he can slip quietly back into the slot, for a record fourth time.

There's something different this time, however, about the type of opponents Dye faces in his bid for re-election.

Two of them—Ken Harper of Vicksburg and Eddie Briggs of DeKalb have been serving for the past eight years in the state Senate over which Dye reigns. A third—Henry Kirksey of Jackson—formerly served under Dye in the Senate.

All three can personally attest to how Dye has exploited the lieutenant governor's office as a base of unprecedented individual power over the legislative process, even though he is supposed to be part of the executive branch of government.

While governors have come and gone, each with programs they took before the people, Dye has continued to operate his own agenda, sometimes at odds with the legislative agenda of the administration.

Harper openly broke with Dye two years ago after Dye vetoed a between-sessions trip for Harper to attend a national conference on labor legislation in Hawaii (Harper is chairman of the Senate Labor Committee).

Dye's move came in apparent retaliation after Harper questioned the wisdom and legality of Dye picking Frank Barber, a registered lobbyist, to fill the post of secretary of the Senate.

The episode sent Harper, a tough-minded lawmaker, digging into state aircraft flight logs and resulted in his disclosure of some 15 trips by Dye to attend Ole Miss football and basketball games, frequently with lobbyists on board.

Then Harper began a barrage of criticism of Dye for his longtime coziness with lobbyists, charging that because of it lobbyists "have got the gold mine and the people of Mississippi have got the shaft."

Now the 42-year-old Vicksburg senator is challenging Dye in the Democratic primary on Sept. 17, charging that Dye has abused the powers he has under the Senate rules and controls the Senate with an "autocratic" hand.

Hampered with the lack of campaign funds, Harper has only this week launched his first TV campaign advertising spots to enhance his limited statewide name recognition.

However, Harper has picked up a couple of major political endorsements—from the Mississippi Association of Educators, and the Mississippi AFL-CIO.

Briggs, who switched to the Republican Party in March, was unopposed for the GOP nomination for lieutenant governor, and already is assured of a spot on the Nov. 5 general election ballot.

The 42-year-old DeKalb attorney, once a Dye supporter in the Senate, but never one of Dye's key lieutenants, early this year made an open split with Dye, declaring that he had become frustrated by Dye's strong-arm control of the internal structure of the Senate.

Briggs, a strong backer of a state lottery, contended that Dye had virtually doomed a lottery bill passing because of his appointment of mostly lottery opponents to the Constitution Committee, through which the measure had to go.

Briggs has emerged as an advocate of stripping the lieutenant governor of Dye's

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Gambling establishment should close during school traffic hours

Dear Editor,

The community has been reading rules and regulations for several weeks on dockside gambling.

One concern that has been overlooked is regulating hours of operation for gambling establishments. The buck has certainly been passed on this issue.

I was told by a representative from Royal Walker's office that local government will play a vital role in regulating hours.

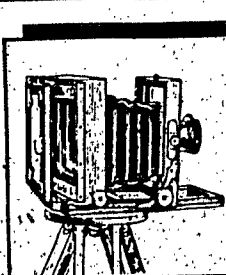

As a parent, I am asking that all citizens demand that gambling establishments be closed during the hours that children are trying to get to school and while coming home from school. My children do not ride bikes or walk to school, but not all children have a choice.

Many parents have to allow their children to walk or ride bikes because of their working hours.

I believe that every local school board, PTO, youth task force and any other organizations that are truly concerned about our youth demand from our local government operating hours that will protect our children.

Sincerely,
Deborah Alford

—In Justice Breath's court last Monday morning, the bicycle case of James Sojourner versus the Ladies' Minerva Mutual & Aid Association was tried, and after the issues of both sides had been heard, the verdict was rendered in favor of the plaintiff. Lawyer Bowers represented Mr. Sojourner and the association by Lawyer Seal. The trouble dates since the Minervas gave their last entertainment, the latter part of July, at which time they proposed and advertised that to the gentleman selling the highest number of admit tickets would be given a prize or remuneration for his trouble, a $100 Columbia bicycle. At the time the prize was offered, quite a number of competitors entered the race and the management of the association felt confident that the wheel would bring double its cost, but as the task of disposing of the tickets was not so easy as what was probably expected, the contestants dropped out one by one leaving Mr. Sojourner in the field alone. The contest closed, and it was discovered that the project had not resulted as a money maker, whereupon much discussion arose and a court case resulted. An appeal has been taken to the Circuit Court, Messrs. G.G. and E.C. Gardebled being bondsmen. This case has attracted considerable attention, and while many opinions on the final result have been formed, yet the outcome will be watched with much interest.

NIC reaches Calgon safety milestone

National Industrial Constructors Inc. (NIC) recently celebrated 250,000 manhours of work without a lost time accident at Calgon Carbon Corporation.

NIC is the general contractor for Calgon Carbon's new activated carbon facility under construction at Port Bienville.

NIC's resident construction manager for the project, Charley Fulton, credits the dedication and hard work of direct hire and subcontractor personnel for the achievement of this goal.

"We provide the safety training, but it takes individual effort to ensure that the training pays off," Fulton said.

To mark the milestone, project employees enjoyed a breakfast sandwich and coffee when they reported for work. Everyone was also given a commemorative knife.

There are currently 365 people employed on the construction site representing both direct hire and subcontractor personnel. About one-third of these employees are from Hancock County. Over two-thirds of those on the site are from Mississippi.

Local subcontractors include Roy Anderson, W. C. Fore, Haynes Electric and Yates Construction.

National Industrial Constructors Inc. is headquartered in Birmingham, Ala. and is one of the nation's largest construction companies serving industrial markets.

Sidewalk repair, replacement and new construction is planned, as is continued training of employees in the most efficient means of doing repair work. The purchase of needed maintenance equipment is also included.

Administration: The city administration plans to implement a new computer system to streamline accounting operations, and the court department will use a new computer system to monitor and increase the collection of fines owed to the city.

Administrative employees will receive additional training in computer operations and public relations.

There will be a public hearing on the budget Thursday, Sept.

5, at 7 p.m. The city council will call a special meeting September 12 to adopt the budget.

most closely guarded powers—unlimited terms and the control over appointments to Senate committees and naming of chairmen of all committees, assignment of bills to committees, and chairing the powerful Senate Rules committee.

Calling for a two-term limit for the lieutenant governor's office, Briggs charged last week: "It's time to close the book on long-term control of any office by an individual... If we in Mississippi are ever to have responsive government, we must take the first step... to put an end to political bossism once and for all."

Kirksey, who served in the Senate from 1980 to 1988, flatly charges that "you can't get a bill passed unless Dye wants it to pass."

Contrary to what his critics say, Dye contends his personal power is vastly overrated, and he says he is standing on his record.

But one thing has happened: He's no longer flying on state planes to ball games.

Two-day public workshop to teach effective community involvement

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Everybody talks about community improvements, and what their town should be like in the future, but to change ideas into reality often leaves the individual citizen at a loss.

This week a two-day public workshop will address procedures and techniques to bring about change through community participation.

Waveland resident Bruce Northridge is chairman of the committee that will host the Mississippi Humanities Council sponsored workshop, on of seven planned in the state.

Northridge explained, "This workshop goes well beyond academic assertions. It is the beginning of the process by which citizens are engaged to participate in developing a future vision for their community."

The workshop, called Project Futures, will address how individuals can work together within the democratic process so community leaders are informed as to what the people want.

Conducting the area workshop with Northridge will be Mississippi 2020 member Bob Kochitzky and Jamie Boyll of the Mississippi Environmental Management Organization.

The first night (Friday, 7 to 9:30 p.m.), Northridge said, "the people will be shown a short film explaining how one, in 1991, can begin to think of what the year 2020 will be like."

Pat Smith, a professor of history at USM, will discuss the democratic process and the role of citizen responsibilities.

Northridge said that on the second day (Saturday, 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.) the participants will be broken into discussion groups.

Discussion will be of four subjects: "Vision. What Do You Want in the Future?"; "Identification of the Problems. What Are the Things Stopping the Development of That Vision?"; "Strategies To Overcome Those Blocks. Now Specified"; and "Tactics To Implement the Chosen Direction of the Majority."

The workshop will be at Waveland Resort Inn on Hwy. 90. For more information, call 467-0908.

HIT-AND-RUN

Waveland Police Investigator James Varnell reported the arrest Thursday of a Waveland resident following an incident involving three vehicles.

Varnell said Kimberly S. Monti, 30, of 728 Gladstone St., was charged with DUI first offense and leaving the scene of an accident after she reportedly struck two parked vehicles at Mason's Exxon on Hwy. 90 in Waveland late Thursday night.

Waveland officer Kendall Ladner stated in his report that witnesses said Monti traveled over the curb at the Exxon station, struck a car belonging to David M. Bosley, 29, of Bay St. Louis, then glanced off Bosley's vehicle and struck a Mason's Exxon vehicle which was also parked.

Monti then reportedly travelled up Hwy. 603 to Longfellow, where she turned, went down Longfellow back to Hwy. 90, and was stopped by Bay St. Louis Police Officer Jeff Hair in front of Gerry Lane on Hwy. 90. Hair cited Monti for improper equipment and an expired car tag when he stopped her, according to Bay St. Louis Police Investigator Gus Aime.

Varnell said Monti was released from the Hancock County jail under a $5,500 bond.

BURGLARY OF A DWELLING

Bay St. Louis Police Investigator Gus Aime reported the arrest of a Bay St. Louis man on a charge of burglary of a dwelling.

Aime said Gregory A. Jenkins, 29, of 590 Easterbrook Street Apt. 7, was arrested on a warrant Wednesday afternoon after reportedly breaking into the residence of Maxine Brown and taking $45 from Brown's purse around noon that day.

Jenkins is incarcerated in the Hancock County jail under $1,500 bond, Aime said.

'Grandpas' enter third year of volunteering at pre-schools

Fifteen retired senior volunteers are ready to begin the third year of a program known as "Project Grandpa."

Beginning on Thursday, Sept. 12, the group will visit Head Start, which is located in the former St. Rose de Lima School on Nacaise Avenue in Bay St. Louis.

Each Thursday thereafter during the school year the volunteers become "grandpas" to the three- to five-year-olds from 9 to 10 a.m.

Under the direction of the teacher, they help the children with their letters, numbers, colors, and more.

"The only skills needed by the 'grandpas' are patience and understanding," they were told on being asked to volunteer,

"and the love that they show to the little children will be returned to them a hundred-fold."

"Project Grandpa" is not affiliated with any church, school or other organization.

Anyone wishing to join or help this project may contact one of the following for more information:

Elderly warned of fake telemarketing schemes

Some of Mississippi's elderly and people with physical disabilities, who find it difficult to leave home to shop, may be tempted to try a new form of shopping, telemarketing.

The electronic age has created a convenient way to buy products over the phone. Unfortunately, this also offers an opportunity for unscrupulous operators to victimize consumers, especially the elderly, according to the Department of Human Services' Division of Aging and Adult Services.

"While most telemarketing companies are legitimate businesses, there are some that have swindled people out of substantial amounts of money," said Billie Marshall, director of Aging and Adult Services.

"Operators have taken credit card numbers, charged accounts and never shipped merchandise. Some advertise and promote phony or worthless merchandise. Others take payment by check, cash the check and never ship the merchandise."

Avoiding every fraudulent telemarketing scheme may be impossible, but Aging and Adult Services offers some suggestions which could minimize the risk of becoming a victim.

—Never send cash or a check to a telemarketing merchant unless you are very secure with the merchant's stability and reputation. Using a credit card gives you some protection if the merchandise is not received timely or is not as promised.

—If you do charge purchases on a credit card and have not received satisfactory merchandise when you are billed, notify your credit card company in writing. You are not obligated to pay for the charges if the card issuer is notified promptly and you cooperate in resolving the problem.

—Don't order merchandise solicited directly from a telephone. Insist that the company send a brochure or catalog. If printed material is not available by mail or the caller suggests there is not time, there is a good chance that you are being set up by a phony operator.

—Be extremely skeptical about health-related products that offer simple or "miracle" cures for serious or chronic health problems. You can be sure that if such cures are available, health care providers will know about them.

—Check monthly credit card statements closely. If a telemarketer has your credit card number for an authorized purchase, there is the possibility that the number could be used for unauthorized charges. If there is an unauthorized charge, the credit card company should be notified by phone and in writing immediately.

—If a deal sounds "too good to be true" it probably is, and companies offering such deals are, in most instances, fraudulent.

"Anyone who has been victimized by telemarketing fraud should contact local law enforcement officials or the Consumer Fraud Division of the state's Attorney General's Office," Marshall added.

A vote for MICHAEL (Mike) LADNER

is a vote for progress, honesty and proven leadership

As District Five Supervisor, Mike Ladner has kept the promises he made four years ago. He promised to help Hancock County, one of the fastest growing counties in Mississippi, continue to move ahead, but he wanted to do it without raising taxes or going into debt. Budgets have been tightened, but there has been no tax increase and the county is only utilizing a third of its borrowing potential. Isn't that enough to qualify Mike Ladner for your vote?
Why does Mike Ladner want to work so hard for the county? It's his home. Ladner is a native of Hancock County and attended Hancock County schools.
Mike Ladner has other qualifications and accomplishments too. Take a good look at them and then cast your vote for Mike Ladner, number 142 on the ballot, in the Sept. 17 primary election.

The Jewish New Year—September 9, 1991

The Jewish year is determined by a lunar calendar, not by the sun as in our modern western civilization. When a new moon appears, a new month begins.

The first month of the year is in the Spring, memorializing the exodus from Egypt. On the first day of the seventh month, Tishri, is the New Year holiday. At the sound of the Shofar (a ram's horn blown on the New Year) the Jews are reminded of the way their Biblical ancestors were called to worship.

According to the lunar cycle each month has 19½ days—not easy to put into a solar world! So, one month is 29 days, the next 30. In one year one would find 353 or 355 days. To keep the lunar calendar useable, seven times, in a cycle of 19 years, an extra month is added to the Jewish year—the leap month.

Thus, in 1949, the New Year began on September 24; in 1950 on September 12; in 1961 it was October 1; and in 1991 Rosh Hashonah (the Hebrew name for New Year) will be September 9.

All Jewish Sabbaths and festivals begin at sundown the preceding day. Jews everywhere will worship together on the evening of September 8 and the day of September 9.

Orthodox Jews observe Rosh Hashonah for two days, Rosh Hashonah for one.

This important holiday, one of the two holiest in the Jewish year, is not celebrated as our January 1. Rosh Hashonah, though joyful, ushers in a 10-day period of penitence ending in a day of fasting, on Yom Kippur, 10 days after Rosh Hashonah.

The service read on Rosh Hashonah is a very spiritual stock-taking. It is written that "On the New Year the books of life are spread open before the Great Judge. In this period of Judgement it is determined who shall live and who shall die; who shall be at rest and who shall wander; who shall be tranquil and who shall be harassed; who shall be brought low and who shall be exalted."

Some Jews believe the above literally, some metaphorically. We try to answer the ongoing questions, "What is man? What is our life? What will be our fate?"

During these beautiful services Jews face their frail human existence. No attempt is ever made to gloss over the evils of life. God's ways may be inscrutable but, ultimately, they are accepted as fair. Therefore, fear the Lord—that is the beginning of wisdom.

The New Year's services ask the individual to be introspective of all his ways and deeds. God forgives, and one must find a very personal relationship that will be acceptable to God. Judaism offers no easy way to God—there is no mediator. God has placed an awesome responsibility on each Jew to find, obey and treasure all of His commandments—to please God in God's way.

On September 8 the 10 days of Penitence begin. The sounds of the Shofar will penetrate deeply into the hearts of modern Jews and they, as do I, wish you a healthy, peaceful New Year 5752.

Servants deserve nothing

Reflections

On Life

By Father Jerome LeDoux, SVD

"And now, one of the most coveted awards given annually by the diocese to those who have distinguished themselves..."

Somehow, the very concept of being recognized through an award for serving God, family, school, church and/or community left a strange taste in my mouth as I sat listening to the diocesan representative introduce the honorees. Why coveted?

The event took me back several years to an occasion when two other black pastors and myself were cited for outstanding service as pastors in black communities. That day, I had the most awkward of feelings that the award was inappropriate.

Nothing else rang in my ears but the words of the Master: "When you have done all you have been commanded, say, 'We are unprofitable servants; we have done what we were obliged to do.'" (Lk. 17: 10).

Recognition is a good thing and every bit as necessary as affirmation itself. Yet, there is a very strong paradox here. Jesus warns us against the very thought of serving others with a view toward recognition of those services.

On the one hand, we are terribly insecure creatures, hungering and thirsting for the least look, word or gesture of recognition, acknowledgement, encouragement, compliment, praise or positive critique.

Without these positive inputs, our self-doubt and insecurity routinely eat us alive and ravage our self-esteem.

On the other hand, we are so prone to vainglory and every description of vanity that any sort of praise or compliment can whet our appetite in the wrong direction.

Instead of using words and gestures of encouragement to better ourselves, we can easily fall into the vice of feeding our ego and seeking more and more compliments for the sake of still more glory and praise.

That is not even on the same planet with Jesus' description of a servant: "The Son of Man did not come to be served but to serve and to give his life as a ransom for many" (Mt. 20: 28).

We cannot argue with innumerable individuals and companies who boast of the great service they give us in return for whatever price we pay them. That is a very real definition of service. However, it is commercial, mercenary service.

That kind of service certainly has its place in the world, because business has its place in the world, and that commercial form of service is the fuel cell of business.

Which is exactly what sets it apart from the service which Jesus commands us to render both to God and our fellow humans. There is a reward, of course; in fact, the greatest reward or pay of all: eternal life, complete happiness in God.

Here and now, the only payment should be that virtue is its own reward: fulfillment, contentment, peace of mind, a pervasive feeling of well-being.

Still, we know that is asking a bit too much of most humans, for most of us cannot bring ourselves to do good habitually when and where no one will see it or hear about it.

Grudgingly, we have to allow for some form of recognition, realizing all the while that the unrecognized are often the most deserving of all. If Jesus came only to serve and to die without recognition, can we aspire to anything less?

Steps of memory

The Our Lady of the Woods Shrine Memorial Pathway is ready and waiting for the stones to fill the walk. The walkway is 720 feet long and eight feet wide. When filled, it will hold about 6,240 etched stones. Each stone is $150, of which $100 goes towards the debt incurred by the purchase of the St. Joseph Academy property by Our Lady of the Gulf Parish and the remaining $50 pays for the cost of the stone and walkway. Each stone is engraved with the name of a person or family in lasting memorial. For information on the purchase of a stone call the church rectory at 467-6509. (Echo staff photo by Jacqui Cochran)

SHOPPING UP A STORM

By Katy
McGuire Caire

judging by the conversation coffeetime this morning, and the stores and elsewhere, it's but unanimous that mountains of pork ribs are slated for the barbecues along the Coast
this Labor Day weekend.

But, there the unanimity comes to a screeching halt! We all are positive, often loudly so, that ours is the only day, and our sauce the only one to use! (And, I'm every bit as bad as the next would-be expert, I confess!)

But, there's no disagreement, or shouldn't be, over the ribs available, of varied sorts, all at special prices, in our area supermarkets just now, with meaty spareribs, from small to medium to large, piled up at all the stores, at good, good prices.
There are even those riblets on sale, as well as country style ribs and even ribs with brisket (this last a bit more costly, but then think of the brisket!).

Like many others, I am partial to the country-style pork ribs as they're more meaty and usually cheaper than the spareribs. But, remember, they do take a little longer to cook, so they have more meat on the bones. In addition to all the ribs around, you'll also find chops and chops at the meat counters at good prices.

As much as most of us have different ways of doing the ribs, the choice of marinades and seasonings and sauces, to say the least of doing it all, I hesitate to tell you what to do.
But if you're in the mood for a recipe or so, the coffeetime experts for the most part agree that it's best to parboil the ribs first, and to trim off at least some of the fat.

Or use a "dry rub" of seasonings before starting the cooking. Some advocate a vinegar sauce, others slather on the barbecue sauce; it's a personal preference, after all, isn't it?

But, whatever you do, don't cook 'em to a leathery dryness.
It's easy to keep track of the "doneness," poke a sharp knife between the central meaty ribs.
If the juices run clear, or somewhat on the golden side, the ribs are done. If they run red or pink, better give 'em another 10 or 15, or maybe even 20 minutes more. And, enjoy!

Beef cuts are another good buy these days, as usual at this time of year. Whether your choice is destined for the barbecue pit or grill, or for indoor cooking, you'll find a cut you'll like, I'm sure. Boneless chuck roasts are a special bargain (good barbecue "stuff," by the way) and shoulder steaks are specially priced as well. One of my friends plans to pick up a whole rib eye (costs more, but no waste and so good!) for her family's holiday meal.

Turkey and chicken are also good buys, with chicken breasts and breast quarters and leg quarters bargain-priced. As for turkey (remember back when we ate it, mostly at the Thanksgiving and Christmas table?) there's such a variety of turkey offerings that it's difficult to choose.
Turkey wings are a good buy—and quite tasty when braised with vegetables, for instance.

(Bell (green) peppers are a good buy in the vegetable department, as are white onions and broccoli, for example. And, don't pass up those seedless white grapes, also the flame grapes—and the scupper-nongs! The new crop of red Delicious apples is in. Bananas are in good supply. Remember, the Banana Fest is going on this weekend at Rice Pavilion in Gulfport—you might pick up some good ideas there!

A mural by Kat Fitzpatrick and Auseklis Ozols featuring African symbols incorporated into a massive oak tree framing the risen Christ adorns the sanctuary of St. Rose de Lima Catholic Church.

St. Rose rededication

Ceremony features traditional African music, dress

BY JANET MCQUEEN
St. Rose de Lima Catholic Church opened for worship in 1926 in a structure completed with the help of its parishioners.

Last Sunday, some 700 residents witnessed the church's rededication on its 65th anniversary.

The handiwork of the St. Rose congregation is still evident, with the blessing of an altar lovingly constructed from a piece of pine driftwood by Ellsworth Collins, William Curry and Honore Hazeur Sr. A hand-painted mural of a crucified and risen Christ was created by parishioner Kat Fitzpatrick with the assistance of Auseklis Ozols, director and founder of the New Orleans Academy of Fine Arts.

The August 26 ceremony, planned by pastor the Reverend Ken Hamilton, focused on the African heritage of black parishioners and elders of the church. Although the congregation is predominately black, any given worship service will find the pews occupied by both black and white families.

Bishop Joseph Lawson Howze was the main celebrant of a morning Mass, with music by the St. Rose Gospel Choir. Members of the Sacred Dance Ministry of New Orleans performed a special liturgical dance in African dress.

An overflow crowd listened to the service which was broadcast outside under two tents.

Symbolic of the worship theme "Re-rooted and Re-routed in Christ," dancers combined soils representing the racial, cultural and ethnic roots of the St. Rose parish family. A large bowl held the soils from New Orleans, Mobile, Senegal-Fort Garay, Plymouth Rock, Bay St. Louis, Tuskegee, Ellis Island, Houma, Ghana and from the ancient Indian Mound in Ocean Springs.

Portia Labat, the church's oldest elder and daughter of Joseph Labat (builder of St. Rose de Lima Church and convent) was recognized by Bishop Howze.

Icons, which were hung on the walls of the church, were also blessed by the Bishop, as were a new baptismal font and stained glass window donated by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Shellnut.

A procession led by African funga drums completed the service, which was followed by a reception at the St. Rose de Lima parish hall.

Rev. Hamilton has been pastor of St. Rose since 1989.

Flower drying tips from a local expert

By Dr. Milo Burnham
Horticulturist
Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service

How often have I heard it said about a bouquet of flowers, "Oh, if only it would last a little longer?" Unfortunately, most flowers are relatively short-lived. A single daylily blossom lasts only one day.

A squash blossom lasts only a few hours. An orchid may last a couple of weeks in the refrigerator, but then it discolors and loses its beauty.

It is not uncommon to keep a flower as a reminder of a special day or event by slipping it between the pages of a book to dry and press it. But a bouquet such as a bridal bouquet of fresh flowers generally is left to wither and be discarded.

I believed that to be the fate of all bouquets, until I met and talked with Faye Cole, a professional flower drier in Starkville.

I recently visited with Faye, saw some of her work, and asked about tips on flower drying. At the time Faye was surrounded with dried flowers, all brightly colored, and the beauty of some really amazed me.

A small, dried arrangement of yellow roses, from the top of a 50th wedding anniversary cake, still looked fresh. What is hard to imagine is the amount of detailed work that goes into preserving and arranging the flowers.

A bridal bouquet is taken apart, and each flower is individually dried in silica-gel. Even the fresh greens are dried. Once the flowers are dried, the bouquet is reassembled according to a picture taken of the fresh bouquet.

A small bouquet may require as much as 10 hours of work from start to finish over a period of several days. This does not include the drying time.

It may take as long as two hours to disassemble a bouquet and cover the individual flowers with silica-gel. Silica-gel is sifted between the petals and around the individual flowers to provide support during the drying process and to absorb the moisture.

After the flowers are dry, another hour is spent removing them from the silica-gel. Each flower is individually cleaned before the bouquet is reassembled, and this takes another five hours or so.

Faye uses silica-gel (she has 300 pounds) and her microwave oven to dry the flowers. Each type of flower has its own heating time, ranging from one to six minutes at the low or medium oven setting followed by about four hours of cooling and drying time. Once dried and cleaned of any adhering silica-gel, the individual flowers are stored in moisture-proof containers.

Faye said wilted, discolored flowers are just that. Their looks won't be improved by the drying process.

drying, and some aren't glued at all.

While books give some basic guidelines about color changes during the drying process and best ways to dry certain flowers, experience is one of the best teachers.

Professional flower driers roll the flowers in special pigments before drying to in Mississippi Gardens

Faye said one of the latest developments in preserving flowers is a freeze-dry apparatus. With this expensive and sophisticated piece of equipment, a bouquet can be frozen and dried without having to be taken apart and reassembled.

When I asked about some tips for the hobbyist, Faye said it takes experimentation to determine what works best for an individual. Keep some flowers from shattering by applying a light coating of glue to the back of the flowers before they are dried. Other flowers are glued after enhance and retain certain colors in flowers. They also use special moisture proofing sprays to keep the dried flowers from going limp.

Faye said some of the acrylic type sprays available at craft shops can be used. Since dried flowers are so fragile, they need to be displayed under a moisture and dust proof glass dome or in a glassed shadow box.

Properly protected, dried flowers can last for decades. That's not forever, but it's a long time for a flower.

Wusnack attends conference

Prima Wusnack, director of the Hancock County Library System, recently attended the 110th annual conference of the American Library Association at the World Congress Center in Atlanta, Ga.

The conference, attended by 17,000 people, included more than 2,000 workshops, programs and seminars and 1,000 exhibits featuring the latest library technology and information sources. A year-long campaign to mobilize the public's support of libraries was also launched during the conference.

The theme of the conference, "Kids Who Read Succeed," permeated the meetings.

Program leaders included Maya Angelou, author, actress, civil rights activist, composer, director, filmmaker, lecturer, mother, poet, playwright, producer, singer, teacher, and Katherine Pearson (Bridge to Terabithia, Jacob Have I Loved), who discussed the creative connections between books, children and world peace.

Rock musician Frank Zappa, a believer in intellectual freedom and in the power of libraries to educate, was also on hand to discuss "Empowering People: Information Literacy."

Coast Goodwill wins national award

Goodwill Industries of South Mississippi has been nationally recognized by its parent organization for a program that allows people with disabilities to handle contract work for local businesses.

Goodwill Industries of America President and Chief Executive Officer David Cooney presented the Contract Operations Award to the south Mississippi organization in a ceremony at the Holiday Inn Airport, Gulfport on Wednesday.

The award recognizes Goodwill Industries of South Mississippi's involvement with Mississippi Power Company's Investment Recovery Project.

The project began in 1986 when Goodwill signed a contract with Mississippi Power Company to sort and bale its scrap cooper and aluminum wire for recycling. The program expanded to include renovation and recycling of various connectors used by Mississippi Power.

"This program has allowed individuals with disabilities in our area to do meaningful work and provide a needed service to local businesses," said LeRoy Modenbach, executive director.

"For Goodwill, it represents a new era in our mission to help those individuals learn skills and become productive members of society."

Mississippi Power helped Goodwill get started by donating a forklift and baling equipment. However, Goodwill has successfully carried on the project for more than three years.

"The Investment Recovery Project has all the makings of a success story," Modenbach said. "Our disabled employees are able to accomplish productive and challenging tasks, and our organization has become even more self-supported and strong as a result."

"We are proud to accept the National Goodwill Award from Admiral Cooney."

Cooney is a retired rear admiral of the U.S. Navy. Prior to joining Goodwill, Cooney was the Special Assistant to the Secretary of the Navy and the Navy's Chief of Information. His decorations include the Distinguished Service Medal, the Legion of Merit with Gold Star and the Meritorious Service Medal.

Headquartered in Gulfport, Goodwill Industries of South Mississippi is a nonprofit organization providing employment, training and rehabilitation for 65 people with disabilities through locations in Bay St. Louis, Biloxi, Gulfport and Pascagoula.

Cuevas to attend Main St. conference

Mike Cuevas, Main Street-Bay St. Louis project manager, will attend a statewide Main Street managers training conference Sept. 9-12.

Bay St. Louis is the newest city to receive Main Street designation by the governor this year. The revitalization project includes organization, design, promotion and economic restructuring for the city's three major commercial districts.

The project area includes the central business district, the historic depot area and Hwy. 90.

Training will include managing a private non-profit organization, work plan development, volunteer management, staff relationships and team building skills.

Cuevas will also have the opportunity to work with representatives of the Department of Economic and Community Development and Department of Archives and History.

"Our opportunities for Bay St. Louis are endless. We have an imaginative and enthusiastic volunteer corps and a supportive city administration working for improvement and preservation in Bay St. Louis.

"This training will help us further define our mission, goals and objectives for positive impact on our community," said Cuevas.

Margaret Moore promoted to branch office administrator

Margaret Moore, of the investment firm of Edward D. Jones & Co., has been named branch office administrator for the firm's Bay St. Louis office, announced local representative Craig Foster.

Moore's promotion is part of a firm-wide policy on the part of Edward D. Jones & Co. to reward the efforts of branch office secretaries.

Secretaries are promoted after successfully completing a training program and displaying appropriate managerial and administrative skills, according to John Bachmann, managing partner of the firm.

In her new position, Moore will be responsible for administration, marketing and customer-service duties.

Edward D. Jones & Co. was founded in St. Louis, Mo. in 1871. Its home office today is located in Maryland Heights, Mo., just outside of St. Louis. In 1955, the firm opened its first branch office in Mexico, Mo. Offices soon followed in small towns across the nation. Over the years, this network has expanded to more than 1,500 offices in 44 states.

Big B announces earnings

Big B Inc. announced earnings for the 26-week period ended Aug. 3, 1991, had rebounded to $2,881,000 or $38 per share from a loss of $2,943,000 or $39 in the prior year.

For the 12-week second quarter the company recorded a $972,000 profit or $13 per share versus a loss of $3,340,000 or $44 per share in 1990.

Sales for the 26 weeks reached a record $239,499,000, up 6.9 percent from $224,139,000 in the prior year. For the quarter, sales rose 5.5 percent to $106,518,000 from $101,241,000 in 1990. These sales gains were achieved despite the closing of eight under-performing stores during the 26-week period and the opening of one new store.

Big B's board of directors expressed confidence that the profit turnaround will continue by announcing a $.04 quarterly dividend. The dividend is payable on Sept. 20, 1991, to shareholders of record on Sept. 6, 1991.
